Patagonia and the Chilean Fjords

PATAGONIA AND THE CHILEAN FJORDS

“It is scarcely possible to imagine anything more beautiful than the beryl-like blue of these glaciers,” wrote Charles Darwin, awed by the striking iridescent ice while cruising southern Argentina and Chile in 1833. On this exclusive land and sea journey, assume the role of explorer, retracing the bold travels of Darwin and Ferdinand Magellan in southern Chile, a landscape still virtually untouched even more than a century after the first European settlers.

From sweeping pampas grasslands to magnificent glacier-studded fjords and the legendary Tierra del Fuego archipelago, you too can experience the extremes and contrasts of Patagonia, which crosses the Andes Mountains from the Pacific to the Atlantic. See distinctive subantarctic and Patagonian wildlife, including guanacos, rheas, condors, elephant seals and penguins. Enjoy excursions that range from a Maipo Valley wine tasting to a visit to Cape Horn National Park, the world’s southernmost national park.

Along your journey on the VENTUS AUSTRALIS, seasoned expert naturalists, who have studied and traveled extensively in this remote region, will provide presentations on glaciology in Patagonia, the exploration of Tierra del Fuego and more.

TEXAS EXES[®]

— FLYING LONGHORNS —

Dear Texas Ex:

Our unique voyage to Patagonia and the Chilean fjords begins in Santiago on a land and sea itinerary that takes you in the path of legendary explorers Captain Robert FitzRoy and Charles Darwin — through the awe-inspiring Strait of Magellan, the historically significant Beagle Channel, the crystalline Glacier Alley and Wulaia Bay. Along the way, uncover the wonders of Santiago, the extraordinary diversity of Patagonia and Cape Horn, the “edge of the world.”

Launch your adventure in Santiago and visit an award-winning winery in the Maipo Valley. Then venture into the vast expanse of Patagonia to see sparkling glaciers, unique wildlife and the iconic peaks of Torres del Paine National Park. Cruise aboard the expedition ship VENTUS AUSTRALIS, designed specifically for navigating the rich waterways of southern Patagonia, where mountains meet the seemingly endless ocean. The Chilean fjords offer, among their hidden islands and narrow channels, some of the world’s best viewing of tidewater glaciers, subantarctic woodlands and marine wildlife — Andean condors, humpback whales, Peale’s dolphins and rare Chilean dolphins.

Along your journey, an onboard team of multilingual expert naturalists will enrich your expedition with their in-depth knowledge of the region’s history, natural wonders and wildlife. The ship is equipped with Zodiac landing craft for excursions to observe glaciers up close as they crack and calve; distinctive species, including elephant seals, cormorants and endemic Magellanic penguins; and traces of the Yámanas, the original settlers of Wulaia Bay.

This outstanding itinerary is brought to you by the Texas Exes Flying Longhorns travel program, which supports the association’s mission of promoting and protecting The University of Texas at Austin and uniting its alumni around the world. While you do not have to be an alumnus of UT to travel with us, we do ask that all Flying Longhorns travelers have an active membership in the Texas Exes. Memberships start at just $50.

The association is a huge proponent of continuing education and there is no better classroom than our world. Experience rich history and culture in the company of your fellow Longhorns! Are you ready for the adventure of a lifetime? We’re standing by to answer all of your questions and/or take your reservation. Capacity is limited on this popular program and it may sell out quickly. CHILEAN WINES — EXQUISITE & DIVERSE

Although grapevines were first planted in Chile in the early 1500s with rootstock brought over on Spanish ships, it wasn't until the 1980s that the country's excellent viniculture was recognized as a prominent world player.

Due to Chile's unique weather patterns, topography and location — the Pacific Ocean to the west, the Atacama Desert to the north and the Andes Mountains to the east — the country boasts ideal conditions for wine growing. This geographical protection from all sides has also kept Chile largely immune to the disasters, diseases and pests that have plagued other wine-producing countries, including the phylloxera epidemic of the mid-19th century.

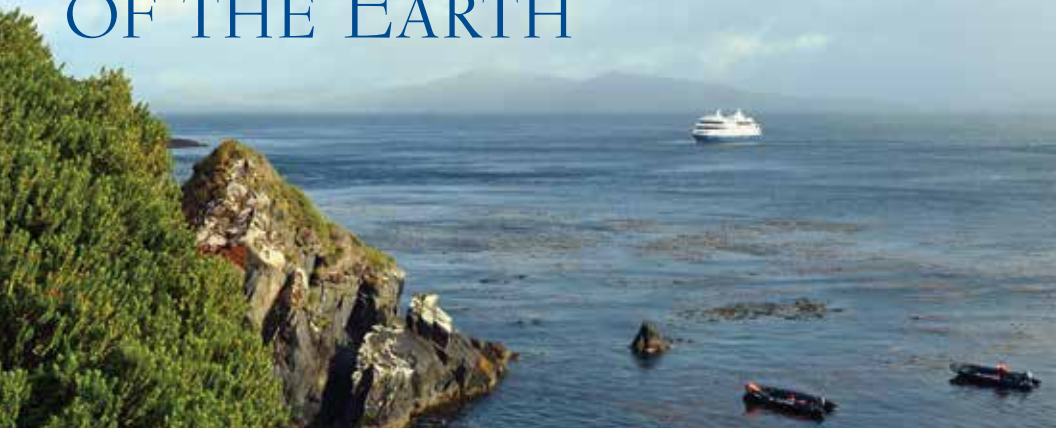

Located just south of Santiago, the Maipo Valley is home to Chile's largest commercial wine-growing region and oldest, most established wineries. Full-bodied, elegant reds flourish here, especially Cabernet Sauvignon, Merlot, Cabernet Franc and Carmenère, Chile's national wine.

With Chile's variety of pleasing wines, from classic terroir-driven wines to obscure Marselan grapes and delectable dessert wines, both wine debutants and oenophiles can sip, savor and return home with excellent memories.

EXPLORING THE END OF THE EARTH

While sailing toward Indonesia's fabled Spice Islands in 1520, Portuguese explorer Ferdinand Magellan became the first European to enter the channel that would later bear his name. Along the south side of the strait, amid the world's southernmost forests, smoke rose from numerous native Selk'nam campfires, leading Magellan to name this island Tierra del Humo, "land of smoke," which Spain's King Charles V changed to the more poetic Tierra del Fuego, "land of fire." The northern side of the strait came to be known as Patagonia, "land of giants," for Magellan and his men's impression of the tall, indigenous inhabitants. Three centuries later, the HMS Beagle, under the command of Admiral Robert FitzRoy and with young naturalist Charles Darwin on board, became the first ship to sail east to west through its namesake channel. Experience the same wonder of these intrepid explorers as you cruise through these mesmerizing landscapes almost untouched since Magellan explored them nearly 500 years ago.
